Praise for A Collector of Affections: Tales from a Woman's Heart

Author Judith Glynn and A Collector of Affections: Tales from a Woman's Heart are featured in a two-page article in Nexos, American Airlines' inflight magazine (December/January 2014).

"With an impressive body of travel writing under her belt, Glynn's first novel is an inspired debut full of steamy ardor and exotic locales....full of heartbreak and redemption." Panorama Magazine/bostonguide.com

"A fast-paced love story about two people who have a difficult time either letting go of the past or forging ahead alone in life...Judith Glynn is a natural travel writer. Her descriptions of Spain, Portugal, New York and Rhode Island are vivid and enticing." IndieReader

"It's going to grab you by the throat, make you laugh, cry, mumble out loud with frustration, and finally give a fist pump or two for an inspirational ending. It's a book that speaks to a woman's soul - especially the maturing woman who might want a bit more sass and edge in her life."

Linda Kissam - examiner.com

"Judith Glynn painted a beautiful picture of where Leah Lynch and her "travel companion," visited. I envy Leah's guts...meeting a stranger then spending time touring a foreign country with him. I am so happy that they fell in love...even if Miguel really did piss me off at times!"
